Credit

Penn State College of Medicine is accredited by the Accreditation Council for Continuing Medical Education to provide continuing medical education for physicians.

Penn State College of Medicine designates this live activity for a maximum of 5.0 AMA PRA Category 1 Credit(s)™. Physicians should claim only the credit commensurate with the extent of their participation in the activity.

It is our policy to ensure balance, independence, objectivity, and scientific rigor in all of our sponsored educational programs. Faculty and course directors have disclosed relevant financial relationships with commercial companies, and Penn State has a process in place to resolve any conflict of interest. Complete faculty disclosure will be provided to program participants at the beginning of the activity.

Objectives

Upon completion, participants should be able to:

1. Discuss the interactions between genetic and environmental factors in determining cancer risk with a focus on underserved populations
2. Describe the risk of cervical cancer and the administration of the HPV vaccine in the rural setting
3. Identify the challenges encountered in recruiting and retaining minority populations in clinical trials

Access

Penn State encourages persons with disabilities to participate in its programs. If you anticipate needing any type of special accommodation or have questions about the physical access provided, please contact Continuing Education in advance of your participation.
