You are cordially invited to attend the

2013 Student Clinician Ceremony

Hosted by the Pennsylvania State College of Medicine student classes of 2014 & 2015, along with the Office of Medical Education, Department of Humanities, Office of the Dean & The Arnold P. Gold Foundation

Please join us on Thursday, June 20, 2013 at 5:00 p.m. in the Junker Auditorium as we celebrate the growth, commitment and the promising future of Pennsylvania State University's next generation of young physicians as they transition into their clinical years.

Key Note Speaker:

Milind Kothari, D.O., Assistant Dean for Student Affairs and Professor of Neurology

Attendees are invited to join us for a reception, following the ceremony, in the Hospital Courtyard

This event provides a memorable transition for second year medical students into the clinical years, while recognizing and emphasizing the value of relationship-centered patient care and humanistic medicine.

The Student Clinician's Ceremony also recognizes outstanding residents through the distinguished Arnold P. Gold Foundation's Humanism and Excellence in Teaching Award. Third year students chose six residents who have exhibited strong teaching skills and are role models for compassionate, relationship-centered care. The Residents that have been chosen for the 2013 Humanism and Excellence in Teaching Awards are:

Jeff Fornadley, M.D.

Afif Kulaylat, M.D.

Jennifer Smolinski, M.D.

Sol De Jesus, M.D.

Amiethab Aiyer, M.D.

Kazu Matsushima, M.D.
